Liturgical word of the Week

This week we address the fourth of the 10 Commandments - the universal laws given directly by God to Moses on Mount Sinai: Honour your father and your mother. The family is the basis of society and respect is due to parents and other lawful authorities. God has willed that, after him, we should honour our parents to whom we owe life and who have handed on to us the knowledge of God. This commandment is addressed expressly to children in their relationship with their parents because that relationship is the most universal.
